about the speaker:

Julie Kaplow, PhD, ABPP, is a licensed clinical psychologist and board certified in Clinical Child and Adolescent Psychology. Dr. Kaplow serves as Director of the Trauma and Grief Center at Texas Children's Hospital, a designated Treatment and Service Adaptation Center of the National Child Traumatic Stress Network specializing in child and adolescent trauma and bereavement.

Using both clinical material and empirical research, this workshop will provide an overview of the ways in which children utilize spiritual beliefs to cope with the death of a loved one. We will examine children's spiritual beliefs in the context of Multidimensional Grief Theory and identify ways in which these beliefs can help them to overcome specific bereavement-related challenges. This workshop will also include hands-on exercises as well as videotaped interviews with bereaved youth to further explore how children's spiritual beliefs can be harnessed to support adaptive grieving.

workshop objectives:

- Learners will be able to identify three dimensions of grief, as described by multidimensional grief theory.
- Learners will be able to describe ways in which specific spiritual beliefs can be beneficial to children following a death.
- Learners will recognize ethical challenges with regard to the utilization of spirituality/religiosity in a therapeutic context.

Bo's Place exists to enhance the lives of those who have experienced the death of a loved one.
